Barlow Respiratory Hospital is a national leader in weaning chronically critically ill patients from mechanical ventilation. We are the only not-for-profit long-term care hospital in California and the destination of choice for medically complex and chronically critically ill patients referred to us from intensive or critical care units at the finest hospitals in California. Our interdisciplinary teams include board certified physicians, registered nurses and licensed therapists.

Founded in 1902 as the Barlow Sanatorium to serve patients with tuberculosis, we are proud of our 120 years of service and established expertise. We work together to provide individualized care and treatment for each of our patients. Our goal is to achieve the best possible outcomes to recover and return home or discharge to lower levels of care.

Barlow Respiratory Hospital is an award-winning hospital accredited by the Joint Commission and meets national standards for demonstrating quality of care, patient safety and excellence in associated medical staff.
